"We first utilised SCL's services for electrical testing and from the great service we received we went on to award them the fit-out project for our European HQ. The project was seamless and the result is truly fantastic. SCL have been awarded the maintenance for all our UK properties. The people at SCL are a joy, straight talking and truthful. They really do work for a win/win as they say." John Bradley, Monster Energy

This case study briefly details the complete office fit-out at Monster Energy's European HQ in London.

We undertook the design and build of this project in its entirety following a consultation with Monster Energy to ascertain their exact requirements. We managed the fit-out project from start to finish with our own operatives undertaking all works. The brief was to have an energy efficient package with an open planned industrial finish. This was achieved completely, on time and within budget.

When designing we looked at the ease of use aspect as well as the legacy of service and maintenance. Our aim was to gain the longest manufacturer guarantees on plant and equipment for the customer and ensure future service and maintenance would be straight forward and cost effective. This has resulted in the customer receiving added value and future cost savings that they were not originally considering.

Monster Energy wanted a European HQ to impress whilst being practical to work in. The finish met their needs completely and the customer congratulated us on exceeding their expectations.
